SOVIET RETURNS TO OLD FORM OF MONEY STANDARD

Revolutionary Reform Is Done Away With By New Order.
CHANGE IS COMPLETE
Possibility Of Opening Trade Relations Reason For the Condition.

Moscow, by wireless to Berlin, March 28.—The decision of the Russian soviet government to abolish money as the medium of value and exchange has been rescinded. This announcement was made today by M. Leshava, head of the Russian foreign trade board.
In response to a question as to how Russia plans to resume trading not only in this country but with foreign nations, M. Leshava said:
"Naturally we cannot use money just yet in our internal commerce. However, we intend to return to the money standard. Commerce will be carried on upon the money standard and it is being so ordered by the soviet government. Merchants will repay to the state in goods that they get from the peasants and other customers will pay in goods for products they receive.
"It is probable that the small business people will be under the control of the co-operatives society. The foreign trade board will act as agent of the co-operatives in foreign countries.
"The co-operatives will control the distribution of all goods bought, both local and foreign. The co-operatives will immediately give the peasants some manufactured articles on credit from the government.
Peasants Will Pay.
"When confidence is established the peasants will pay in products.
"As to government concessions they must be approved as follows: First by the department to which the concessions belong; second, by the foreign trade board and third, by the committee of commissars of which Nicolai Lenin is the chairman.
"The concessions include foreign capital to strengthen our industries. Without it our social and economic development would be interfered with.
The announcement that the Russian soviet government will adopt the monetary system of the capitalist governments does away with one of the most revolutionary reforms inaugurated by the bolshevik regime in Russia. After the establishment of the soviet federal government it was stated that the old monetary system would be done away with and that goods of all kinds would be used as the medium of exchange and barter. It was declared that the financial systems of the "bourgeois" countries was one of the chief causes of the sufferings of the working class. However while money was ordered abolished the government continued to print paper roubles. They were not used in the distribution of such food and clothing and fuel as the government rationed. These supplies were doled out upon a system of cards, the status of the applicant determining the amount he should receive.

COURT REINSTATES LORAIN'S POLICE CHIEF IN RULING

Is Exonerated Of All 16 Charges Prepared Against Him.

Elyria, O., March 28.—Judge W. B. Thompson of the common pleas court today reinstated A. A. King former mayor and president of the Ohio police chiefs association as chief of police at Lorain. King was exonerated of all the 16 charges preferred by Mayor William F. Crall which led to King being suspended last July 16. The court held that the powers of the police chief are not wholly regulated nor supervised by the different charges of administration and that orders of the mayor where they conflict with the enforcement of the law may be disregarded by the chief of police.
King was tried by civil service commission and was found guilty of 13 of the 16 charges, one charge being dismissed and in two charges he was found not guilty.
The decision cites that there has been no information of any momentum which could not have been adequately dealt with by reprimand. The decision further declares that most of the charges were unwarranted, bigoted and of a prejudicial nature and states that King denies all charges and satisfactorily gives reasons for transactions which resulted in charges.
The court orders king reinstated immediately and to be given his pay as police chief since suspension last July 16.
Theodore Walker, who took the civil examination and was promoted to his old position which the court holds is all he has been entitled to and that he could not be appointed police chief because there had been no vacancy, this vacancy being determined by court decision. Walkers pay has also been held up.

Mr. Proctor, according to the reports, charged that he and Mr. Sprague signed a $100,000 promissory note to finance the Wood campaign and Mr. Sprague failed to pay his half of it when the note was called for collection. Mr. Proctor said he paid the whole amount.

SIXTY SIX ROADS AFFECTED BY BOARD RULING ON WAGES

Applications By "Short Line" Railroads Dismissed

Chicago, March 28.—All applications by "short line" railroads for working conditions and rates of wages that govern the so-called "standard" lines were dismissed by the United States railway labor board today. The decision affects sixty-six roads in all parts of the United States.
The board ruled that none of the applications by the short line roads could be acted upon until cases pending that involved the standard roads are disposed of. The decision however does not prevent the smaller roads from bringing up their applications when the calendar is clear of cases involving the large roads and it does not affect any decision as to wages hours of labor or working conditions previously rendered by the board.

FIRMNESS IS HELD BY RAILWAY WORKERS

Columbus, O., March 28.—Reiterating the decision that the railroad workers throughout the nation will refuse to accept a reduction in wages, Scott Wehe, Columbus, member of the executive board of district 40, Pennsylvania railroad machinists, expressed confidence that the national agreement between the railroads and their employees will be sustained for the most part in the decision which the railway labor board will make relative to the request by executives of the railroads for abrogation of the agreement.
Wehe who spent the past three weeks at Chicago representing the 22,000 railroad workers in his district before the railway labor board admitted that employees will gain and lose on various provisions.

ATTEMPT TO IDENTIFY BODY OF A MAN

Chicago, March 28.—Attempts are being made today to identify the body of a man which was found beneath an elevated sidewalk in West North Avenue and to find a woman who was seen leaving the spot a short time before the body was found.
The body of the man was concealed in a rude cave under the sidewalk. Beside it when the police arrived was a woman's muff.

The dead prelate is clothed in full Episcopal robes, with the mitre on his head and the episcopal ring on his finger. The doors of the cathedral were thrown open to the general public after today's solemn mass, the first of a series which will end Thursday when the funeral will take place.
Among the late cardinal's relatives from Dayton, Ohio who will be here for the obsequies are M. J. Gibbons, Arthur Gibbons, A. J. Ward and Frank McCormick.

OUTBREAKS IN GERMANY ENGAGE SECURITY POLICE

Conflicting Reports Received From Trouble Centers—Ruhr District Quieter—Police Confiscating Machine Guns, Ammunition and Propaganda.

Berlin, March 28.—After heavy fighting security policemen have recaptured Sangerhausen, in Prussia Saxony, from the communists. Elsewhere in middle of Germany the reichswehr, supported by artillery, are dispersing armed bands of reds.
Wilhelmstrasse admits however, that conflicting reports are being received from some sections where trouble has broken out. German officials complain that the confiscation of the reichswehr supported by artillery has made air scouting impossible, hindering attempts to get information from danger spots.
Reports from Munster were that the Ruhr district is quieter although small fights have occurred between communists and police detachments. The police are confiscating machine guns, ammunition and propaganda literature.

BRIDGES IN DAYTON CLOSE TO TRAFFIC BY CITY ORDER

Action Taken As a Precautionary Measure Due To High Water.

Dayton, O., March 28.—As an act of precaution, the city today ordered the Dayton View and Herman Avenue bridges, over the Miami, closed to all vehicular traffic, while pedestrians may cross at their own risk. The river is high but not at a danger point and the city expects no damage. On account of scourings many feet deep beneath the bridges, the city was taking soundings to determine the extent and prepare for repairs. These are held up until the water recedes. The Dayton View bridge connects the city proper with Dayton View, the aristocratic residential section, while Herman Avenue bridge connects with the McCook field section of the city.

Russia Must Acknowledge Claims of Many Millions

U. S. To Insist That Debt of $350,000,000 Be Admitted Before Any Trade Agreement With Soviet Is Made.

Washington, March 28.—Acknowledgement of American claims totalling more than $350,000,000 is likely to be insisted upon by the United States as one of the conditions to be complied with before there can be any trade agreement with soviet Russia, it was learned today.

Of this amount $187,729,750 was advanced by the United States government to Kerensky as head of the provisional Russian government while the remainder represents Russian loans floated in this country by private banking corporations unpaid interest. By far the greater part of the private loans were handled by J. P. Morgan and Company, issues underwritten by that concern totalling $100,000,000. The National City Bank of New York handled approximately $22,000,000. State department officials point out that in the trade agreement recently with Great Britain by Krassin, the soviet representative, acknowledgement is made in principle at least, of all British claims for services or goods supplied Russian government. It is argued that equal concessions should be demanded by the United States.

There is no suggestion however that immediate payment should be demanded. Government experts who have been watching the Russian situation carefully for the past two years are convinced that Russia not only could not meet such an obligation at this time but also that some practical scheme of extending long time credits to her must be worked out if there is to be a resumption of trade on a scale worth considering.

WASHINGTON TO BE THE CENTER OF PEACE MEET

See Prospects of Another Peace Conference in America.

VIVIANI EXPECTED

"Mission Of Courtesy" To Be Followed By Others Before Decision.

Washington, March 28.—Washington as the world's melting pot for international negotiations and intrigue—Washington as the center of another peace conference, the White House as another Versailles during the next few months, is the prospect seen today by both Republican and Democratic members of the senate foreign relations committee.
They anticipate the arrival here this week of Rene Viviani, former French premier, on "a mission of courtesy," will be followed by a series of others equally important, before President Harding's plan for world peace is definitely and finally formulated.
Eventually they realize that as members of the senate foreign relations committee they will be called upon to consider whatever world peace pact the president may recommend to the senate, and it is for that reason they are tarrying at the capitol during the present recess of congress, so they may keep in personal touch—as much as possible—with what is transpiring in foreign affairs at the White House and the state department.

Thus far with the exception of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, veteran Republican leader from Massachusetts and their chairman, few of them have discussed foreign affairs with the president, nor has he consulted them recently.
Are Confident.
But some of them are confident, even a few of them who are Democrats, like Hitchcock of Nebraska and Pomeroy of Ohio, that sooner or later the president will want to discuss his foreign policies with them if only to pave the way for the acceptance of the Harding peace plan, by the senate.
Reorganization of the senate foreign relations committee, will find several faces missing from its council table notably that of the president himself and of Secretary of the Interior, Fall, both of whom took an active part in the consideration of the party of Versailles, with its league of nations covenant, when the document was before the committee.
Senator Lodge in heading the committee again, is expected to find the same conflict of views among its Republican as well as its Democratic members.
The make-up of the committee will in order of rank be: Republicans—Lodge, chairman; McCumber, North Dakota; Borah, Idaho; Brandegee, Connecticut; Knox, Pennsylvania; Johnson, California; New, Indiana; Moses, New Hampshire; Kellogg, Minnesota and McCormick, Illinois.
Democrats—Hitchcock, Nebraska; Williams, Mississippi; Swanson, Virginia; Pomeroy, Ohio; Pittman, Nevada; and Shields, Tennessee. Republicans 10; Democrats 6.

VILLA REFUSES TO JOIN THE REBELS

Mexico City, March 28.—An attempt to enlist Francisco Villa, the former bandit, in the Carranzista revolutionary cabal against the Obregon government has failed, according to the newspaper Las Noticias today. The newspaper stated that a delegation of former Carranzista army officers headed by Candido Aguilar, son in law of the slain president called on Villa at the latter's ranch near Canutillo several days ago and asked the former bandit to join General F. Murguia in revolt in an effort to overthrow the present administration.
Villa was said to have listened to the overtures and then refused his aid.

SPECIAL SERVICES HELD IN XENIA CHURCHES EASTER ATTRACT LARGE CONGREGATIONS

Special services marked the observance of Easter Sunday at the majority of Xenia Churches and large congregations filled the auditoriums attracted by the announcement of musical and pulpit features, and managed to scurry home with their new Easter finery safely, before the torrent of rain which swept Xenia all afternoon and evening, broke over the city.

Sermons dealing with the Resurrection of Christ, communion, reception of members and special music were the order of the day in the Sunday services. Lilies were in profusion at many of the churches an unusual display of this Easter flower being reported by the First Baptist Church.

In his sermon, "The Resurrection of an Empty Grave," Rev. V. F. Brown of Trinity M. E. Church, drew home the fact that in the resurrection of Christ, which we observe annually on Easter Day, lies the only hope for the world in a future life, since it is the fulfillment of the promise made by Christ in His teachings.

Commenting on the fixing of the date of Easter, Dr. Brown explained that Easter is defined as the first Sunday after the paschal full moon—that is the first Sunday after the full moon that occurs on or next after March 21. It cannot be earlier than March 22, nor later than April 25.

At the First Baptist Church, Rev.

Albert Read preached on the subject, "That I May Know the Power of His Resurrection." The musical program was in character with the spirit of the day.

The First Lutheran Church began the day with a devotional service at 6 o'clock in the morning. Holy communion was administered, and the Cantata, "Triumphant Life," featured the day's services.

The Friends Church, beautifully decorated, accommodated a large sized congregation. The attendance at the Sunday school was the largest in its history.

Rev. Charles P. Proudfoot preached at the Second U. P. Church in the morning on the subject of "Easter," and in the evening on "The Sacred Desires."

The Children's service in the afternoon took the place of the regular Sunday School at Christ's Episcopal Church. William E. Hull of Dayton, was in charge of the morning service.

Easter celebration of the Lord's Supper took place in the morning at the First Reformed Church. The Sacred Cantata "Death and Life" was given at the first Presbyterian Church in the morning, under the direction of Mrs. J. Perry Shumaker. The cantata took the place of the regular morning service.

A large chorus, under the direction of W. E. Hackleman, of Chicago, who has been in charge of the music at the two weeks' revival services which ended Sunday night, gave a special program of music at the morning service of the First M. E. Church. Rev. G. A. Scott preached on "The Drying of a Woman's Tears." Rev. D. D. Dodds of the First United Presbyterian Church took for his subject, "The Immortality of the Child of God," at the morning service at that Church.

The moral is somewhat clouded.

Plans for rearranging telephone, telegraph and other cables are being made. Unit No. 2 contains several barracks and hangars, officers' quarters and an aero garage. There are more than 2,200 acres in the field. A large warehouse is stationed on 40 acres owned by the government.

WARNING GIVEN TO FISHERMEN ABOUT LENGTH OF CATCH

Not many people, and experienced fishermen are included, know the laws regulating the taking of fish that come under the provisions of the law in regard to length.

Many fishermen hook a bass and never think that it may not be of sufficient length to carry home without violating the law. "Goggle eyes" and sun fish" also have their restrictions.

The law says:

"Black bass, less than eleven inches in length, calico or strawberry bass and croppies less than six inches in length, rock bass and blue gills less than five inches in length may not be taken in either of the fishing districts of this state, but if any of the fish named in this section are caught unintentionally in any net or with hook and line and are released alive in such manner as not to injure them, such taking shall not be considered an offense."

The fish known as "rock bass" is seldom spoken of in this community for this fish is known by a local name of "goggle eye." For this reason perhaps it seems to be generally understood that there is no limit to the size of the so called "goggle eye."

Few people in this community know what is meant by "blue gills." Those who have had the opportunity of fishing in the waters of Michigan, particularly the lakes abounding there, are well acquainted with this fish. There have been a few "blue gills" distributed in the waters of Fayette county and several reports of catches of these fish have come in. The "blue gill" resembles very closely the ordinary sunfish both as to shape and color. This fish is easily distinguished by a small blue fin just back of the gill.

REVIVAL SERVICES AT 1ST M. E. CHURCH CLOSED ON SUNDAY

The successful revival services that have been conducted by Rev. C. A. Scott of the First Methodist Church, for the past two weeks, and which have been attended by crowds that filled the church each evening were closed Sunday night, when Rev. Scott delivered his final sermon upon "Christ at the Door."

Representing Christ as earnestly and persistently seeking for admission to the heart of man, Rev. Scott delivered the most appealing and forceful sermon during the entire revival period.

"Behold I Stand at the Door and Knock," taken from Revelations the third chapter, formed the basis of Rev. Scott's sermon, which is given in part:

"Man should esteem it both a duty and a privilege to open the door when Christ knocks and inviting him in, to gladly entertain him. Man should let Christ come into his heart because he has a right to come in. Though he belongs in the heart of man he will not force his way in. He knocks and waits for man to open the door. Man has given to man the right to choose whom he will serve and Christ will always respect that right. Sin has no right in the heart or in the life of man. It is a usurper and an arrogant intruder. It has no respect for the rights of man. It does not stand at the door and knock. It does not wait for an invitation to come in. It is ever on the lookout for an opportunity to break in. And if it ever breaks into the heart it will attempt to rule without regard for the welfare of man. It is the heart that Christ wants, for when he gets possession of the heart he can then control the whole man. And since the issues of life are out of the heart Christ gives a pure life and a good character. The great need of society and of the world is Christ in the heart of the individual."

GOVERNMENT WILL AID IN EXPORTS

Washington, March 28.—Decision of the war finance corporation to depart from the Wilson administration policy and launch a new program for substantial government aid to move American exports of cotton and other raw material to Germany was declared by treasury officials today to be of far reaching importance to American producers.

SPRING VACATION WITHOUT SPRING

Isn't this a nice spring vacation? This was the disgusted expression of one schoolboy, free from his labors at his books, Monday.

All public school children in the city are enjoying their spring vacation this week, and the philosophy of the school boy, that it always rains on a holiday, is being borne out by the inclement weather conditions of the start of this week.

Children of St. Brigid's Parochial school, who enjoyed their spring vacation during Holy Week, will resume their studies Tuesday morning.

HEALTH CONDITIONS IN GREENE COUNTY ARE IN GOOD SHAPE

Three cases of smallpox in the city, have been reported to, and are under the surveillance of, County Health Commissioner R. H. Grube. The cases, that have been reported are, at the home of a family named Green on Bellbrook avenue, one on West Main street, and another case that was thought to have been small pox but where the sign was not put up although under close watch of the health officers.

The recent epidemic of the disease at Jams town has been wiped out, only one case of the malady being known of in that village at present. Dr. Grube said Monday.

Dr. Grube reports health conditions in Greene County as in an excellent state. With the exception of the few cases of small pox in this city and Jamestown and three cases of scarlet fever in Yellow Springs, the county is free of contagious diseases.

The slight outbreak of scarlet fever in Yellow Springs originated in the high school and college of that place, and is under the entire control of the health officers at present.

WILL BRING MEN TO TRIAL FOR MURDER

Monticello, Ga., March 28.—With the first chapter of Georgia's most gruesome murder investigation closed since the discovery of the last of the bodies of 11 negroes in Jasper and Newton counties, officials of Jasper county today took steps to bring to trial at once Clyde Manning, confessed black executioner and John Williams, planter, whom he implicates as instigator of the killings. Officials have started a quiet but thorough investigation of the past of Williams who owns a large plantation near here. They want to know what has become of ten other farm hands said to have mysteriously disappeared.

Leaders in business, civic and social circles here are stunned by the swift developments of the past few days. These investigations began when Manning, arrested on suspicion of having helped make away with two negroes, confessed suddenly that he and Williams had slain or helped slay 11 hands who had worked on the Williams plantation. He showed officers where these men had been buried. Six were pulled from watery graves in the Yellow and Alcovy rivers. Five were found buried in shallow graves on the Williams plantation.

INCOME TAX LAW HELD CONSTITUTIONAL

Washington, March 28.—The income tax law of 1918 is constitutional in so far as it provides that a profit derived from the sale of capital assets is income and taxable, according to a decision handed down today by the United States Supreme Court.

The test case was taken by the Merchants Loan and Trust Company of Chicago, trustees of the estate of Arthur Ryerson. The amount involved in this suit was $311,242. A number of other cases of importance testing the validity of the law were taken to the supreme court of the United States at the same time.

BROTHER AND SISTER OF EXECUTED IRISH LAD LIVE IN U. S.

Lawrence, Mass.—Thomas Whalen, who was hanged in the Mountjoy prison, Dublin, Monday, was a brother to Mrs. Mary Smith and Michael Whalen, of Andover, Mass. In a letter sent to his mother, which was later forwarded to his sister in Andover, he proclaimed his innocence.

Mrs. Smith said that her brother was the fourth eldest of the family and was twenty one years old. She declared that he was studying music at the time of his arrest last January and was a singer of much promise.

ROBBERS GET LOOT VALUED AT $175 AT BABB COMPANY

Money and loot amounting to about $175 was the toll exacted by burglars who entered the Babb Hardware store on South Detroit street, some time Sunday night or early Monday morning.

Two Winchester repeating shot guns, one a 12-gauge Model 97 and the other a 12-gauge Model 12, a 22 caliber New Model Stevens target pistol, some pocket knives and $44 in cash which was taken from the cash register, represented the loot of the night visitors.

Climbing to the roof of the one-story section in the rear of the store, either by using a rear fire escape, or the bars over a window, the burglars used a brace and bit, in tearing a bar out of a second story rear window in the two-story part of the building, smashed a window pane, and unlatched the window. They then went down stairs, and pried open the door leading into the main store room, from which the loot was taken.

The burglary was discovered by D. L. Crawford, salesman at the Babb store, when he opened up the store at 6:30 o'clock Monday and the police were immediately notified of the burglary. It was impossible to say just how many knives had been taken, but with the three guns, valued at $125 to $130, the cash, and the knives taken, the haul of the burglars will easily amount to $175 it was said, by Elbert L. Babb, Monday.

NURSE FLEECE OUT OF $500, SAID

Dayton, O., March 28.—Local police are hunting a man who gave the name of Charles E. Tate, represented himself as connected with the John C. Neuman Lumber company, Mankato, Minn., and fleeced a St. Elizabeth (Catholic hospital) nurse out of $500. Police say Tate went a physician and sought treatment for nervous disorder, subsequently going to the hospital. While there he received a check for $500 which he said came from his father. He induced the nurse to cash the check, police say, and at the same time, by representing himself as prominent in a secret order, obtained a $100 check from the physician, but payment on this was later stopped. A few hours after getting the money, Tate "recovered" and departed without ceremony. It is said someone representing himself as the secretary of the Elks made the hospital reservation for Tate, by phone.

Mrs. Robert O. Reynolds

"I have actually gained twenty-five pounds and I just think Tanlac is the greatest medicine in the world," said Mrs. Robert O. Reynolds, 127 North Denver St., Kansas City, Mo.

"For ten long years I suffered from a very bad form of rheumatism, stomach and nervous troubles. My appetite was very poor. What little I did eat soured on my stomach and I suffered the most severe pains in my back, hips and shoulders. My rheumatism was so bad that I could not raise my hands to comb my hair and my arms hurt me to my finger tips. I became so weak and run down that I lost all my energy and life had become almost a burden. I tried many things but nothing helped me.

"I had only taken my first bottle of Tanlac when I noticed my appetite was improving and I could sleep better at night. I have taken three bottles and the way it has helped me and built me up is really astonishing. I can eat anything and everything without the slightest disagreeable after-effects. I sleep just fine at night and am in better health than I have been for years. I am glad to give this statement, hoping that any who are suffering as I did may experience the same wonderful results, which I believe they will if they give Tanlac a trial."

STORM PREVENTS GIVING CANTATA

The cantata at the Yellow Springs Presbyterian church, was continued during the storm, with the aid of the piano.

WHEN WILSON PERSONALLY SNUBBED SECRETARY LANSING AT PARIS.

The references which we have published to the break between Secretary Lansing and President Wilson have been taken from an article by the former, published in the Saturday Evening Post, a side issue of his promised book on this subject. The latter, (the book itself,) appeared last week, entitled "The Peace Negotiations," from the press of Houghton, Mifflin & Co., $3.

In Chapter VIII of his book, called "The Conference of January 10, 1919," Mr. Lansing describes the President's meeting with the American peace commissioners in the Hotel Crillon in Paris. The former secretary of state, apologizing for introducing material of a directly personal nature, affirms disclosure is necessary to explain why he determined thenceforward to wash his hands of all connection with the covenant of the League of Nations.

The January 10 meeting was called by Mr. Wilson for the purpose of submitting to his fellow American commissioners his original typewritten draft of the league covenant. Until that moment, apparently, the secretary of state was totally unaware of the President's plan. Mr. Lansing minced no words in voicing his opposition to certain features, notably the creation of a "super-government" through the league council of five powerful states and the "self-determination" idea.

Thereupon the President, by word and by mien, made plain to Mr. Lansing he was in no mood to consider those criticisms. He did not even consider them debatable. But then came a Wilsonian thrust Mr. Lansing obviously ever afterward looked upon as the "most unkindest cut of all." The President informed the commission he "did not intend to have lawyers drafting the treaty of peace." As the secretary of state was the only member of the legal profession on the American delegation, he not unnaturally took that unambiguous observation to himself. The impact of the President's remark was all the more annihilating to the secretary of state because of what called it forth. Mr. Lansing had just apprised the commission that its legal advisers, at his request, were preparing a skeleton treaty. The secretary of state thereupon was forced to the humiliating conclusion that not only were no lawyers wanted at Paris, but that in particular his own advice was unwelcome. Mr. Lansing assured himself his fellow commissioners received a similar impression. Forthwith he resolved to refrain from either criticisms or suggestions at the Peace Conference.

ANOTHER KANSAS LANDMARK GONE.

The passing of the Whitley hotel at Emporia, which was burned last Sunday, removes another of the landmarks of pioneer Kansas. There was a day when the Whitley hotel was regarded as some pumpkins as a "hostelry." That was the name for it in the days of its glory.

Next to its boast of being the home of Preston B. Plumb and the acquisition of the division point of the Santa Fe railroad, Emporia once pointed with pride to the "palatial" Whitley. Men who have contributed much to Kansas history have contributed a part of that history in conferences and meetings and political conventions framed and planned in rooms at the Whitley.

For there was a time when Emporia snapped its fingers at Topeka as the political capital of the state. There was a day when Emporia told Topeka where to head in, and gave orders as to what Topeka would take when it passed its political plate for a helping. Before Copeland County—the name given to the old Copeland hotel at Topeka—came into power, the Whitley house at Emporia was.

In the days when Plumb was the boss in Kansas, statesmen from every corner of the state made pilgrimages to Emporia and to the Whitley hotel. There they made slates, named candidates for congressman and for governor and parceled out the postoffices.

It is an interesting coincidence in the political history of the state that both the Whitley and Copeland, the two hotels that have played such a big part in the political game of the state, should have passed on by the fire route.

In recent years the Whitley had lost its fame. It lived in its past glory, and like many of the old-time Kansans who cut a wide swath in the days when the Whitley was a seat of power, it had lost its influence and its pull. Young Kansas did not know it. The name meant nothing to the younger crowd. It lived, again like many of the old-timers who shared its prestige in the other days of Kansas politics, on the transient trade, the temporary favors that the public had to bestow.

THE VICE OF IMPATIENCE.

Impatience can easily become a vice, and will become such if you allow it to dominate you. Delays in everything save the sweep of the spheres in their orbits and the movements of the tides are to be expected. Some of them can be shortened, but not by getting into a fever over them.

Watch a man changing a tire on a motor car. If he is the impatient kind he mislays his tools, works unavailingly at something he could do easily if he took the time and occupies perhaps half an hour at the job. The man who is calm and patient gets it done in half that time, and with no loss of temper.

Impatience never produced anything that was worth while. It never speeded up production. Even in war, where things have to be done in a hurry it is the man who plans with patience, and patiently awaits the right moment to strike who is successful.

Youth, almost always impatient, dislikes to think of the years that must intervene before manhood, with its supposed privileges, is at hand. When manhood arrives the privileges do not appear so charming, and it is seen that the impatience of youth was rather foolish.

Patience does not mean dawdling or idling. It merely means adjustment to conditions as they exist, and a recognition of the fact that hurry is always wasteful. If you are the impatient sort, try to cultivate patience. It is a means of investing time to make sure of rewards in time and money later on. You will never have either if you rush your way through the world, fuming and fussing at everything that causes a little delay.

About the only thing a woman is afraid of is TIME. It is something with which she cannot get the last word.

The real test of a man's nature is how he acts before he gets his breakfast.

PIERRE LA PLATE

March 28, 1749.

One of the greatest of French scientists was Pierre La Plate, who was born in Normandy in 1749. His father was a poor farmer and the boy owed his education to the fact that his astounding mentality interested some wealthy friends who sent him through school. He was a mere lad when he was teaching mathematics in a military school in the country, but he wanted to make a great name for himself, so he journeyed to Paris. No one took any notice of him, but he was not discouraged. He picked out a great scientist and wrote him a long letter on the principles of mathematics. His letter so astonished the scientist that he immediately looked up the stranger and got him an appointment as professor of mathematics in the great military school of Paris.

From that time, when La Plate was 23 years old, until his death, his career was one of uninterrupted prosperity. His writings on scientific subjects brought the whole world of intellectual people to his feet. He lived through the trying period of the French Revolution and through the rule and the downfall of Napoleon. Towards the last of his life he lived quietly in the country. Meantime he had been made a Marquis. He died in 1827.

He had one of the greatest intellects ever known. Another man of learning said of him, "He would have completed the science of the skies, had that science been capable of completion."

ANOTHER WOMAN ESCAPES

Georgetown, Ill.—"After my first baby was born I suffered so with my left side that I could not walk across the floor unless I was all humped over, holding to my side. I doctored with several doctors but found no relief and they said I would have to have an operation. My mother insisted on my taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I soon found relief. Now I can do all my own work and it is the Vegetable Compound that has saved me from an operation. I cannot praise your medicine too highly and I tell all of my friends and neighbors what the Compound did for me."

Mrs. MARGARET MCCUMBER, 27 S. Frazier St., Georgetown, Illinois.

Mrs. McCumber is one of the unnumbered thousands of housewives who struggle to keep about their daily tasks, while suffering from ailments peculiar to women with backache, sides aches, headaches, bearing-down pains and nervousness, and if every such woman should profit by her experience and give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial they would get well.

REAL STUFF.

Grown tired of all the modern books, in which sex stuff prevails, I said, "Ods bodkins and gadzooks, I'll read some old time tales. The authors of a bygone time wrote works that hit the spot but modern authorship's a crime, and modern books are rot." I took a Cooper story, then—a "Leather-stocking" yarn; the sight of it brought back again our old ancestral barn; there I would sit among the hay when I was but a child, and roamed with Cooper far away, in forests dark and wild. But now I turned the pages o'er, and heaved some weary sighs; I found each character a bore, a preacher in disguise. The paleface hero strove to teach a lesson worth our while; the noble red men paused to preach in every forest aisle. The lovely damself rode around on palfreys black and white, and preached a while when'er they found an audience in sight. The luckless captive didn't screech when burning at the stake; he merely saw a chance to preach, and windy maxims make. I read that book an hour or two, then threw it on the floor, and sighed, "Great Scott! Can it be true that once it didn't bore? And was I ever young enough to think that story fine? And did I ever read such stuff and thrill all up my spine?"

WITH THE WOMEN OF TODAY

The activities of the W. C. T. U. are by no means curtailed because of national prohibition. Instead, they are increased. The national association has made Americanization work its next objective and with this as its aim has started Americanization centers in some of the larger cities. It is the idea of the W. C. T. U. in their work to make a special effort to reach the women who are not able to leave their homes because of children and household cares.

director and the moving spirit in a new center which was founded during the past winter in a densely populated section of Chicago, is working as the head of the department of Americanization of the union. "The home keeping women of the foreign born are suffering under the handicap of not being able to enjoy the same privileges which come to the men in shop or factory and to the children in the public schools. We want to bring to these women lessons in English, rudiments of citizenship, which are, as a general thing, presented in classes and community centers," explained Mrs. Vayhinger recently in a talk before a group of workers.

"Classes and meetings of various kinds are held in the centers and women who are trained in Americanization work go into the homes of the foreign born women where they teach English and anything else which can be taught to these new-comers to America."

In addition to her work among the foreign born, Mrs. Vayhinger is also conducting a training school for workers, whose members receive their practical work through the activities which are carried on in the center.

MAY NOT ABANDON "GRASSHOPPER" ROAD DECLARES FORD

That the "Grasshopper" railroad the short line which runs from Fayette county to Kingman in Clinton county passing through Greene county at Bowersville, will probably not be abandoned, but may be improved and extended to Hamilton, was the statement made by Henry Ford, who with his son, Edsel Ford new owners of the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton railroad, of which the "Grasshopper" is a branch, inspected the line last Thursday.

The Ford party went over the short and jerky division in the new motor rail car in which they made the trip from Detroit, but had it towed by a steam locomotive over the division to the terminal at Kingman. Mr. Ford was not with the party, but arrived later from Hamilton in a Ford Sedan having been inspecting his tractor plant in that city.

"I cannot say just yet what can be done with this road but I hope that it can be extended to Hamilton, where my Ford plant is situated, thus giving me a shipping outlet through this part of Ohio," he said, in an interview. He assured the people of Kingman that the road will be extended to Hamilton if it is at all possible. "My first motive of course, the inventor said "is to afford good shipping facilities for my factories but I do not intend to lose sight of the fact that there are farmers and other people along the D. T. & I. Railroad, and that I must also serve them."

Civil War Veterans Change Time of Meetings to Afternoon

There is a story behind the bare announcement of Lewis Post, Grand Army of the Republic that it will henceforth hold its bi-monthly Post meetings on the second and fourth Thursday in the month in the afternoon instead of at night.

The story behind this announcement is that, it proves the majority of these heroes of the Civil War are not able to attend the night meetings. With gradual decline of age, many of them realize that they are not as spry as the day when they helped to keep the Union intact at Bull Run, Gettysburg and other points of contact with the Southern forces.

At the last meeting of the post, which was always held at night, only about six veterans were present. Others said they could not see well enough to be faring out at night, and the Post passed a resolution, changing the time of the meetings from the night time, to the afternoon and meetings will be held henceforth on the second and fourth Thursday, at two o'clock in the afternoon.

There is another story in the fact that there are now only 40 members of Lewis Post, which however is the only G. A. R. Post still alive in the county. Others have broken up as their memberships diminished at the hands of Father time's scythe, and have attached their members to Lewis Post until now it is the only surviving organization in the county.

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. You will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, hollow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the successful substitute for calomel—now and then and find them fit, 15c and 30c.

SPIRITS AND CLOTHES OF EASTER PARADE DAMPENED BY RAIN

Marchers in the Easter parade here Sunday morning were not aware that the weather man, with his quantities of rainfall, was stalking them with grim purpose.

The bright sun that greeted Sunday morning churchgoers was only rivalled by the bright array of these Easter devotees themselves, who attired in the latest spring creations, were paying tribute to the exacting Goddess of Fashion.

Yet before the afternoon had well started, or just about the time the more courageous paraders had set out in the van of the style procession, the rain, with a determination that stamped it as being no passing affair, began falling in torrents.

Gayly-colored Easter bonnets, took on a sad and depressing appearance, in their efforts to maintain a degree of pride in the face of adverse elements; nattish females held their hands to bobbing ear hobs to keep them in place as they scurried for shelter; the charming new coat suits, with the one-piece backs and tightly buttoned up neck effects flared in the breeze created by hastening feet; gaily shoes were sacrificed to muddy puddles and short skirts, knee length, my dear, and displaying diaphanous hose, proved real worth in permitting milder the frost possible action in an undignified run for roofs, residences, awnings and umbrellas.

The Easter parade here, bid fair, fostered in the warm sunshine of the morning, to rival all its predecessors in brightness and glory.

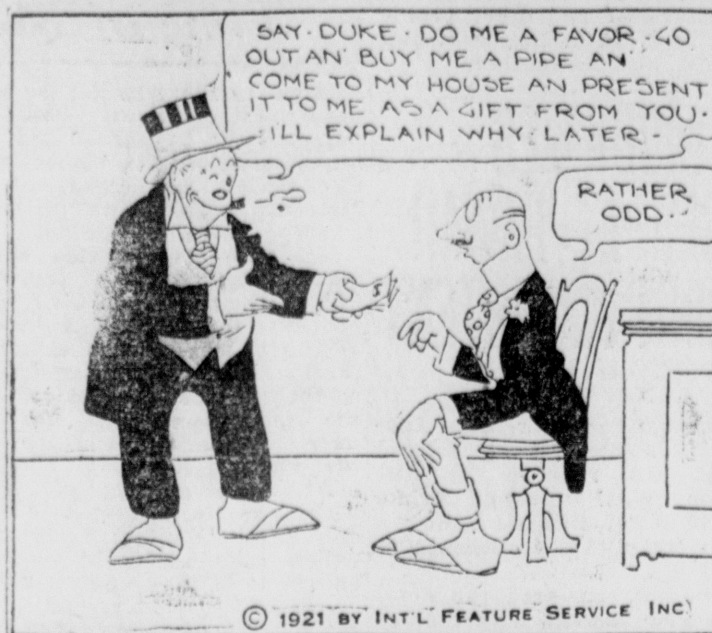

Mildly took advantage of the extremely warm morning to go coat-less if possible. Unless perchance, she was displaying as part of her Easter attire, one of the new and chic suits, that are being worn much in blue serge or a spring coat in the popular Polo cloth. The bonnets as usual, were vari-colored as they were vari-styled their brightness of hue, bespeaking the warm March days that seemed to force summer styles this year.

There were two kinds of people Sunday. There were the unhappy sort, who having purchased Easter attire in gay colors, wanted to join in the Easter parade, but could not because of the rain and then there were the sort, who having not provided for the inclement weather prevented the necessity of a march forth in done-overs.

The rain having set in, was of the lasting variety. Its torrential downpour, knew no let up during the afternoon or night. The Easter parade planned for weeks, was taboo in its back ground. People who were out Sunday afternoon, slopped about in sneakers rain coats and old hats. They presented decided contrast to the crowds of Sunday morning, and almost gave the lie to the fact that Xenia stores have been crowded with shoppers, who were planning for weeks for this occasion.

Easter crowds Sunday morning were not devoid of men, either. They joined in the fashion procession, feeling better dressed than for some time. Men found themselves especially glorified in new spring suits. The cut of the masculine attire, also shows marked change. The high waist line, has been dropped from the masculine coat and now rests in its appointed place. Cuffs that once flared, are now cut straight, although the closely mould ed sleeves are still fashionable. Lapels have been dropped lower on the coat, also, and little dog ear lapels are considered smart. Bows returned to the back of hats, and the Oxfords, are a modification of the brogue that has been popular. Even men, however, more accustomed and less affected by the action of the elements were averse to entering forth in new attire in the face of Sunday's storm.

Having put in the night at a steady downpour, the rain gave way to snow early Monday morning. The flakes were big and wintry looking and called to mind a prediction of less than 30 days ago. March, opened mild and spring like and if old adages are to be given credit the lamb-like overture, is to be followed by a lion-like finale. Monday, gave evidence of the truth of this prophecy of the fickleness of March, and so it is believed the Easter parade, will be postponed until April's softness gives forth promise that Easter finery, will not be endangered by running a-foul of bad weather.

BETTER TELEPHONE SERVICE RECEIVED BY LOCAL USERS

H. W. Cleaver, commercial manager of The Ohio Bell Telephone Company here, returned Sunday from a two day conference of company officials at Columbus where reports were presented which showed that Bell Telephone subscribers throughout the state were receiving better service than ever before.

THE WOMAN HE MARRIED

DARKEST JUST BEFORE DAWN

In the morning the postman brought Dick a thick letter.

His big serial had been accepted, and a check of such dimensions as made us gasp was his reward.

"Don't you see, Dear, that you never needed Juanita or anyone else to make you a success? In fact I rather think she put you back about a year." I remarked casually as we planned what we would do with the money. "It was perfectly lovely for her to want to help you all along. I wanted awfully to myself. But I felt I would only hinder, so I never offered."

Just as though you had not helped! Never, Nan, had it not been for you I never could have written anything. You financed the family until I got on my feet.

"Let us go over and tell Juanita of your success," I suggested. Frequently I urged him to go over there with me. It gave him less excuse to go alone. Yet I knew that he did go, that her hold was still strong enough to make him long for her, and seek her society.

Mary, Juanita's old servant who had been with her for many years, was in her confidence an extent not often seen between maid and mistress. When we first met Juanita she had told me that she never had any secrets from this old woman who had been with her since her childhood.

"She knows all my goodness and all my badness," she had said laughingly. "I can be quite myself with her."

I never had liked the old woman, although I could give no real reason for my dislike. She was inoffensive, almost servile toward Juanita's guests but there was something not quite frank I thought, something almost sly about her.

The parlor maid admitted us. She said she would tell Juanita we were there. After a bit she came back and said her mistress was not in, and asked us to wait as she was sure she would soon return.

We sat in the living room, the windows of which opened upon the porch. About 15 minutes had passed when we heard voices. Juanita and Mary had paused on the porch and the windows being raised we heard distinctly. It was Dick's name uttered by Juanita that caught our attention—that kept us silent. Then,

"Now Mary, you know it won't do any good to urge me."

"But Miss Juanita," Mary's voice was stubborn, "Mister Williams aint fitten to make you act the way you do. He aint nothin' but a poor writer man with a wife he'd have to get rid of before he could marry you and—"

"Marry me? That's rich! I don't want to marry him, Mary."

"Then what do you want of him, Honey?"

"I want to make him get rid of her! I want to show her I can! She thinks he cares for her, the ordinary little thing. Why he has been crazy over me since the first day I met him."

"And you like to show your power over him same as you have with the others, don't you? But Honey, never mind worrit'n about this writer man—let his wife have him."

I listened to the old woman pleading for me with curiously mixed feelings. I couldn't have spoken to save my life. So it was to show her power over him that Juanita wanted to take Dick from me, not because she loved him.

"I tell you Mary, I will never give up, I'll make him—make him say he wants me to go away with him. He is the first man who has ever resisted me so long. I'll prove to you that I can take him from her, plain unattractive working woman."

"But you won't marry him, you never does. Mrs. Williams aint ever done nothing to hurt you. Just let him go, Honey. It aint love you have for him else I wouldn't be a teasing you. It's only that gettin' them to love you and then laffin' at them. You aint bad, Honey—only that way."

"I won't let her have him!" Dick's hand was on my arm now. The pressure and his glance demanded silence. "Not until I have proven I can take him away from her!" Juanita stamped her foot. "I tell you he's going to be at my feet where he belongs!"

Dick opened the door and still holding my arm, drew me out upon the porch with him.

"You have just said, Juanita, that Nan thought I cared for her. Well—I do! You see we have heard all you have said. We should have stopped you perhaps when we heard ourselves discussed. But—well, we have proved the old adage that listeners never hear good of themselves."

"I don't care if you did hear!" Juanita was white with passion. "Mary is right! You are too common a man for me to bother with. A man who makes love to a woman and then tells his wife about it, is not worth thinking about!" I could have laughed as I recalled that once I had told her Dick always confided his affairs to me. Then she turned to me:

"I wish you joy of the warm-over affection you will get from him!" Dick laid his arm over my shoulders and replied:

"If Nan will forgive and love me. I will make her as happy as I can. Will you, Nan?"

"I have already forgiven and I never have ceased to love you, Dick, come let us go home." I wanted to get away before Juanita could say anything more.

As we hurried down the walk I heard Juanita's mocking laugh. But it no longer had the power to hurt me—

He plants it carefully in the "good ground"—in the places where because of favorable conditions it has a chance to bear a harvest of consumer results.
